

INDUSTRIAL FANS

HW Ventilation offers solutions to a wide range of different applications within the industrial fans industry, ranging from ventilation systems for industrial plants, to ventilation for commercial buildings, tunnels and garages. Key characteristics of the axial fans for this segment are high efficiency and high strength of the components. The flexibility of HasconWing[®] axial fan range makes it possible to select the best solutions for your performance requirements, both for standardized fan units and for customized ventilation units.